AFTERNOON WORKSHOP OPTIONS

Workshop 1: Collective Action for Social Justice Race, Justice & Wholeness in Boston

facilitated by the Esther Generation team

Esther Generation is a local non-profit that uses music and fashion to unite women to run neighborhood, regional and national campaigns to benefit social justice and humanitarian causes. This year's campaign will focus in on the issue of racial and ethnic injustice.

Come ready to advise Esther Generation on their upcoming campaign. Some of the key questions they are hoping to answer are:

- How to frame the campaign and use language that acknowledges and addresses the racial divide that exists within racial justice conversations and movements -- given the complex issues that we have today, what new terms of art can we invent to describe this divide?
- What unique role do the Christian women in Boston have in addressing racial injustice?
- Together how can we become leaders right where we are, moving our churches and faith communities towards reconciliation and wholeness?

Workshop 2: Unity-Centered Collaboration

Igniting a Christian Women Unity Movement in Massachusetts

facilitated by Woven team & an emerging network of Christian Women Leaders: BeOne

BeOne, an emerging network of Boston area Christian women leaders and ministers, is convening a gathering of Christian women across Massachusetts to ignite a movement of Christian unity amongst women from diverse theological and cultural backgrounds.

Come ready to pray together, share your ideas about the unique role of women in Christian unity and advise on the launch of BeOne's advisory team.
