Please join My Life My Choice at The Boston Foundation on Thursday, October 11, 2018 for a transformative conversation about our groundbreaking work to combat the commercial sexual exploitation of children.

The State of My Life My Choice is an opportunity to learn about the key matters in the current and future plans at My Life My Choice. Particularly, we will focus on the preliminary results from the National Institute of Justice (NIJ) evaluation and My Life My Choice's strategic plan. In an effort to make our plan most effective, we need your input. This is a work-in-progress—we will be offering our guests some of our draft planning and seeking feedback.

The NIJ evaluation is a three-year comprehensive evaluation of our My Life My Choice program, which has recently been completed by expert researchers at Boston University School of Public Health and Northeastern University. The evaluation looked at concrete qualitative and quantitative outcomes of our prevention work, as well as our mentoring services. While the researchers are still analyzing the data, we will discuss what this initial information means for our ongoing work, as well as the broader anti-trafficking field.

Our business plan will provide an outlook for the next three years focusing on our prevention and intervention work on both a local and national level. As we plan to deepen our services locally and expand to provide more training nationally, we have been examining our practices to determine the best next steps. We invite you to offer input and ask questions as we chart the coming years at My Life My Choice.
